Grammar Point
Negative adverb ne...pas	A negative adverb is used to change a positive statement into a negative statement. In English, the adverb not is used. In French, the adverb ne...pas is wrapped around the verb, e.g. j'aime / je n'aime pas.
Agreement of noun and adjective	The word heure is a feminine noun and midi and minuit are masculine nouns. As demi is an adjective, it must agree with the noun it follows.
Adjectives that precede the noun	Most adjectives follow the noun (e.g. adjectives of colour), but some (e.g. petit and grand) precede the noun, as English adjectives do.
A compound word	These are words created by combining one word with another. Some compound words are joined by a hyphen. In English, some compound words join together without a hyphen. These are known as closed compounds.
A compound sentence	This is formed by joining 2 clauses, linked by a coordinating conjunction.
A negative adverb	A negative adverb turns statements into negative statements. An indefinite article in a negative construction changes to de. If the next word begins with a vowel sound, de becomes d'. This is known as elision.
Et quart	Quart is a masculine noun. It does not change its spelling or pronunciation in any clock time.
