Agreement of feminine noun and adjective	An adjective that describes a feminine noun must “agree” with its noun. It must end with ‘e’. An adjective that already ends in ‘e’ does not need to add another ‘e’, e.g. rouge, jaune, orange, rose.
Change in pronunciation with some feminine agreements	An adjective that does not end in ‘e’ must add one, e.g. petite, grande. This means that the pronunciation changes.
Ordinal numbers	An ordinal number tells the position of something in a list , such as 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th. Ordinal numbers may be written in English with numerals and letter suffixes.
Cardinal numbers	A cardinal number represents quantity; it tells us how many, e.g. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.
The first ordinal number in French	In French, the first ordinal number is le premier or la première. We use le premier with a masculine noun, and la première with a feminine noun
